Our Flag Forever.

NOTICE.

We have not the time nor the inclination, to dun personally, a large number of persons who have unsettled accounts upon our books of several years standing. We shall, therefore, from day to day, without respect to persons, place into the hands of a Justice for collection, all accounts of over two years standing. All those who wish to save expense, will do well to give us a call immediately.

The Battle at Winchester.

Authentic reports of the battle at Winchester come in slowly enough, and rather vexing to the people of this vicinity, as all are more or less directly or indirectly interested. We have enough, however, to assure us that our boys gallantly sustained their honor, and left us no cause to blush with shame for their not having done their whole duty. Every report we have, but goes to prove more conclusively, that the boys acted like heroes, and fought with the desperation of Spartans. All honor to them. They will ever be held in grateful remembrance by those they left at home. They have acted nobly, and fought one of the hardest battles of the war. The "Gallant Three Hundred" will be remembered as long as time shall last.—They have carved their names in indelible living letters of gold, which will be handed down from generation to generation until the end of time.—They have made a brilliant, heroic page of history, which future generations will read with wonder and astonishment.

The charge of the gallant "Three Hundred," of the 84th Regiment, is one of the most brilliant feats yet recorded. In the centre of the line right in front of a stone wall, behind which the enemy and his battery were entrenched, they never flinched, but stood and fought like tigers, while a most galling fire was being poured into them, which mowed them down like grass before the reaper's sickle. Then, too, the brilliant charge of Col. Lewis' regiment, and the capture of the enemy's battery by that regiment, are feats unequalled in the war. We are told that the charge made by Col. Lewis decided the contest. It is confidently asserted that, had he not made the charge, and at the time he did, we would have lost the day.

In our rejoicings over the victory, we should not forget to award that praise and honor due the noble and daring men of the Ohio and Indiana regiments, who participated in the battle. They are far from home, but should not be neglected. The commanding General, however, in his official report will do justice to all, and the newspapers and citizens of their own immediate vicinity, will sing peans in honor of their bravery.

THE NEW CONGRESSIONAL APPORTIONMENT. — The Bill reported and passed by the Senate, leaves this district as in the apportionment of last winter, Huntingdon, Mifflin, Blair and Cambria. The bill reported by the minority committee of the House, and to be considered on Wednesday, takes in the following counties: Huntingdon, Centre, Clinton, Lycoming and Union. We would not object to having Bedford added to the counties first named, —the district would then be about fair, and more likely to elect the best men, than if either party should have several hundred majority to rely upon to elect. Give us close districts and there will be but little danger of the small politicians getting a seat in Congress.

BY A private letter to a gentleman of this place, we learn that the Army of the Potomac had reached Newport News, and were being shipped South as rapidly as possible. They expect to be in Richmond in twelve days. May God speed them, and crown them with success, is our fervent prayer.

A SECESH FLAG.—Capt. G. F. McCabe has sent home a Secesh flag he took from Louden Heights, some three or four weeks ago. The flag is about three feet long and two and a fourth wide. It can be seen at the Jewelry store of McCabe & Swartz.

REV. BRADS, the new Methodist minister, preached his first sermon in the Methodist Church, on Sunday morning

The Noble Three Hundred.

There has been splendid fighting in the battles of the West, and some regiments have been especially distinguished. But, says the Evening Bulletin, none have shown greater valor than the battalion of the Eighty-fourth Pennsylvania Regiment that was engaged in the battle of Winchester.—The greater part of the regiment was left to guard certain points on the railroad, or assigned to some other duty. There were, therefore, not more than three hundred in the battle. Of this number 23 were killed and 63 wounded —in all 86, or more than one fourth. The whole force engaged on our side was about 7,000, and the loss in killed and wounded about 400. This little band of 300 Pennsylvanians, therefore, suffered nearly one fourth of the total loss. They were placed in the centre of the line, and had the most exposed position. We have heard of no flinching under the terrific fire they were exposed to; no sign of fear or panic, even when their colonel was slain and nearly one third of their number had fallen. The charge of the six hundred at Balaklava, highly exaggerated by Russell, and immortalized by Tennyson's noble verse, was, in reality, not so great an exhibition of bravery and endurance. It was a brief and dashing affair; but this of our Pennsylvania three hundred, was a long contest in an exposed position, against a foe sheltered by stone walls and trees, ending with a bayonet charge, at the triumphant close of which only about two hundred were left of the three hundred that had entered the field.—Where is the poet that will worthily celebrate the valor of the Pennsylvania Three Hundred?

A GENTLEMAN who participated in the fight at Winchester, says that after the rebels began to retreat, in their hurry to get away, and not wishing to be encumbered by their muskets, which were already loaded, they stuck them into the ground as far as the bayonet would admit, so that in the pursuit our men could not use their own weapons upon them, as it would have taken some time to pull the guns up, and by that means, increase the distance between the pursued and the pursuer. He also says that while our men ran along after the fleeting cowards, as they passed the dead bodies of their companions, they each recorded a vow in Heaven that they would revenge their death. This gentleman says that he found a gun lying by the side of a dead rebel, already loaded, cocked and capped, which he picked up and fired at the enemy, threw it down again and went on.

THE REMAINS OF COL. MURRAY AND CAPTAIN GALLAGHER.—The remains of Col. Murray were taken to Hollidaysburg on Friday last, accompanied by a military escort, relatives and friends of the deceased, and a committee appointed by the Legislature. The remains of Capt. Gallagher, of Williamsburg, who also fell in the battle at Winchester, were taken to Hollidaysburg on Saturday morning. Capt. Gallagher leaves a wife and two children to mourn his loss.

FIRST OF APRIL.—To-day is the first of April, and in olden times was dedicated "All Fool's Day," but in these latter days, has gone into disuse. The jokes to-day, however will not be a few. It is still interesting on another account, as it is "All Moving Day." Hundreds and thousands will change their places of residence to-day, and the dear good ladies will be on the qui vive to know who are going to be their future neighbors.

ON SUNDAY, a number of our citizens were startled by two or three reports of thunder, which they took to be reports of cannon, coming from the direction of Strasburg, but on investigating the matter, they couldn't make a battle out of it.

ON Saturday, the "Ladies Aid Society" of this place, shipped two boxes and a bale, addressed to the sick and wounded of the 84th and 110th regiments Penna. Vol., Winchester, Virginia.

CAMP NEAR FAIRFAX, VA., March 14, 1862.

To the members of the Soldiers Aid Society of Manor Hill:

In behalf of the hospital of the 49th Penna. Regiment I have been authorized to say, that your box was duly received, for which you have our kindest thanks. The receipt of your present would have been acknowledged sooner, but owing to the severe illness of our surgeon, and since, has been very busy making preparations for a march. We feel that our soldiers will never want, as long as they have the sympathies of kind and patriotic friends at home.

Yours very respectfully,
Lieut. F. T. MCDONALD.

Our Army Correspondence.

CAMP NEAR KEITSVILLE, MO., March 22, 1862.

DEAR GLOBE:—Having a few spare moments, I will try and write a short letter to give you and your readers some idea of our doings in this State and Arkansas.

We made a retrograde movement on the 18th from our camp on Sugar Creek, Ark., to this place, for two prominent reasons: First, to get away from the great stench, which was becoming very annoying; and second, for the want of forage, which was very scarce; indeed, we have consumed almost everything in this country that can be used for man or beast.—The armies of Price and McCulloch were encamped all through this neighborhood during the past fall and winter, and had consumed nearly every thing before we came here, but still we have managed to get along tolerably well. However, when on the pursuit of Price from Springfield to Cross Hollows, our "boys" suffered severely from want of provisions, particularly bread. Meat we could get, but sometimes, for 48 hours together, we had nothing else. When our foragers would succeed in getting a little flour or meal, it was divided out in rations, and cooked or baked, and all was ate in the morning at one meal, and we had to rely on beef till next morning. Of beef we had plenty, having captured it from the rebel army, but it was of that class, called by the professional butcher—slippery.

At Cross Hollows we took possession of three good grist mills and found plenty of wheat and corn, and we lived as well as soldiers could be expected to do, until the evening of the fifth, when we fell back to Sugar Creek, in order to receive in a becoming manner, their excellencies, Van Dorn, Price and McCulloch. How we succeeded is well known. How they were pleased, personally, I do not know, but I think they were satisfied with the warmth of it. I have no doubt but full particulars of the battle of Pea Ridge, have ere this reached you, and I will not weary you with a repetition of old news.

Yesterday, (Friday,) Lieut. Colonel Chandler, of the 35th Illinois, and Lt. Col. Herron, of the Ninth Iowa, who were taken prisoners by the rebels on the seventh, returned to our camp and were received with cheer after cheer. They were exchanged for a Louisiana Colonel and a Major we had in our possession. From them we learn that the rebels had been whipped even worse than we supposed. They were taken to Van Buren on the Arkansas river. The army was so demoralized as to seem but a rabble without a leader. Col. Chandler said they were well treated. Colonel Herron, (who was wounded,) when they arrived at Van Buren, was suffering from a fever, but, to their credit be it said, was very kindly treated. The rebels all admit the death of McCulloch, McIntosh, Slack, Reeres and others. Gen. Price was slightly wounded in the arm.

Our wounded were removed mostly to Cassville, eight miles north of this place, and are doing tolerably well, but they suffer very much for the want of little necessaries, which, in this country, we cannot get for them.

The secesh wounded are scattered all over the neighborhood of the battle ground; every house within a circle of five miles of the battle is filled with their wounded, and I am very sorry to say, they suffer very much for proper attention. There are but few of their surgeons with them, and a great scarcity of medicines.

Our loss in the battle was about 350 killed and 700 wounded, a great many of whom have since died. The Fourth division, commanded by Colonel Carr, entered the field 2,460 strong, and lost in killed and wounded 588, and 77 missing. The Iowa 4th is a part of this division, and bore a very conspicuous part in the battle, making them the worthy peers of the gallant 2d at Donelson. The 4th went into battle 541 strong and lost 180 in killed and wounded. They fought with desperation for an hour and a half against 3 regiments of the enemy, until out of ammunition, and their guns so foul they could with difficulty load them; and, when ordered, retired in perfect order, their colors flying.

Company F, to which I have the honor of belonging, went into battle with sixty-two men, including officers, and lost 20 in killed and wounded.

The Ninth Iowa also fought bravely and well, as, of course, all must have done to gain such a complete victory over such overwhelming odds.

I received a copy of the Globe of the 25th February, last night, and could you see with what a relish we grab at anything of newspaper kind, in this poor, benighted part of Dixie, the visits of your paper would be more frequent.

This is about the time the sun "crosses the line," and, judging from the kind of weather we have been having here for the past four days, he must have had a good time of it, for we have had rain and snow, sunshine and storm, hot and cold, alternately, and in quick succession, rendering it very uncomfortable and unpleasant soldiering.

We are all under the necessity of franking our letters, and making our friends pay the postage. We have no stamps and cannot pre-pay with money, as most of our mail is sent by trains and messengers to Springfield.

Yours, &c.,
R. A. STITT.

We give the following extract from a letter written by Lieut. Stitt to his mother:

"I must give you a mournful bit of history of a most noble family, who were members of Co. F, 4th Iowa. I think it ought to go into print, as a history of the war. When our company was ordered to Council Bluffs, Levi Debusk and William S. Debusk were members of it. A short time afterwards, I was ordered with a detachment of our company, together with a similar one from each company, to the Missouri State line, the two Debusks being with us. Coming home, Levi was taken very ill, and it was supposed he could not recover. A few days after, we were ordered to St. Louis, and William was sent back to Winterset with his brother Levi, who was discharged. William joined us again at Rolla, bringing a younger brother, Elihu, with him. Last fall Elihu died, and William went back with his remains, and a few weeks afterwards joined us again, bringing with him his father. Now comes the saddest part of my tale.

On the 7th, at Pea Ridge, William was wounded while helping to carry off the field a wounded man. It being night, and our regiment being out of ammunition, they retired from the galling fire of the enemy, and could not get our wounded off. On the afternoon of the 8th, after the battle, William was found by the company in a hospital near by; his father—who had been all through the fight, doing his duty bravely—remained with him, and in the old man's arms he breathed his last.

Poor old man, how I pitied him.—How I wished for him to be at home. He was, in a few short hours, apparently 20 years older. On the 10th, we sent him to Cassville, so that he might be relieved from the duties of camp life, and have better care. On the 16th, we received a note informing us of his death. He died of no disease, but of a broken heart. He leaves a widow and several children, and Oh! I fear for them, when they hear of their loss. I hope something may be done for the family pecuniarily, as they are poor, but very respectable. R. A. S.

Tax on Tonnage.

The following joint resolutions upon the subject of a uniform tax upon tonnage were introduced into the Senate yesterday:

"Resolved, That our Senators in Congress be instructed and our Representatives requested to favor a uniform tax upon tonnage as one of the provisions of the general tax bill.

"That if Congress shall fail to impose a general tax upon tonnage, the Commissioners to revise the tax laws of this State be requested to consider the expediency of imposing a uniform tax upon the tonnage of this State, to be applied exclusively to the liquidation of any debt heretofore contracted or hereafter to be contracted for the defence of this State or the maintenance of the National Union, such taxes to be so imposed as to afford every just discrimination in favor of Pennsylvania trade and interests; and said Commissioners to report on the same to the next Legislature by bill or otherwise."

The propositions contained in these resolutions commend themselves on account of their manifest fairness. The first proposition, it will be observed, recommends that the General Government should impose a uniform tax upon tonnage. The second proposition contemplates the imposition of such a tax by the State in case the Federal Government refuses to do so. The resolution proposes to treat all railroad and transportation companies in the State alike, without discriminating either for or against any—not selecting one to bear all the burden of taxation and allowing all the rest to go free.

One of the strongest arguments against the tonnage tax upon the Pennsylvania railroad as it existed prior to the commutation act of last session is, that it was a partial and invidious discrimination against the greatest thoroughfare for travel in the State. If the policy of the State had been to collect revenue from trade and travel upon all the railroads in the Commonwealth, there would have been no propriety in exempting the Pennsylvania company, or any other, from such imposition; but as the policy of the State was just the reverse of this, it looked like narrow prejudice, or unjust discrimination, to select this road to bear all the burden of taxation, which should justly have been distributed among the various companies incorporated by the State.

In ordinary times a tax upon tonnage cannot be justified, but when public necessity demands extraordinary sources of revenue, and when no interest or class in the Commonwealth ought to escape its just share of taxation, the railroad and transporting companies are fairly liable to the payment of tonnage duties. Both the friends and the enemies of the tax on the Pennsylvania railroad can meet on this common ground, and we trust that the Legislature will be induced to give a favorable consideration to this proposition.—Patriot & Union.

WAR NEWS.

THE WAR IN TENNESSEE.

CAIRO, March 28.—A gentleman from Pittsburgh and Savannah, Tenn., arrived here this morning, and furnishes the following intelligence:

On Monday last, a reconnoissance in force was made at Pea Ridge, on the Mobile and Ohio Railroad, where the rebels were said to be fortifying, but no enemy was found. Our forces are continually augmenting by the arrival of fresh troops.

The latest advices from the rebel camps at Corinth, Miss., give the strength of the force there at 70,000.

On Sunday last, a force of United States troops was sent to Nicholas Landing, sixty miles south of Savannah, which seized 15,000 pounds of fresh pork and 45,000 pounds of cured hams and shoulders. For a long time this has been the mart for the pork business of the C. S. A. Within the last two weeks large quantities have been sent southward by teams.

On Monday an engagement occurred between the gunboats Tyler and Lexington and a masked battery in the vicinity of Eastport. The gunboats fired fifty shots. The Tyler's smokestack was struck once. The effect on the enemy's works was not ascertained.

The Bombardment of Island No. 10.

ST. LOUIS, March 29.—The Democrat's Cairo despatch says: The steamer Dickey went down to the fleet yesterday heavily laden with ordinance and commissary stores. Four fifty pound navy cannon were taken down for the gun-boat Benton; also hand-grenades to repel boarding parties.

Persons from New Madrid report that several rebel transports and gunboats came up within range of our Riddle Point batteries on Wednesday and opened fire; but they were compelled to retreat after a short engagement.

The Grampus is the only rebel gunboat above our blockade, which is constantly on the alert, watching our movements at New Madrid. It is also said the rebels have erected batteries on the opposide side of the river, to prevent Gen. Pope's command from crossing to attack their rear.

From Fortress Monroe.

FORTRESS MONROE, March 28.—Affairs remain quiet here, so far, at least, as to news that can with prudence be communicated to the public.

The weather is splendid, with a gentle wind.

The rebels have been exceedingly busy the last few days about Pig's Point and Craney Island. Tugs have been busily plying to and fro, and it is supposed they are strengthening their fortifications all along from Craney Island to the Point. They have also increased their forces in that vicinity, and their camps have been advanced, and long lines of tents can be seen along the shore.

The Merrimac continues to be the subject of much speculation as to the probability of her coming out. Glasses are directed almost momentarily toward Craney Island, and every undulation of smoke in that direction is closely investigated by hundreds of eager eyes.

Gen. Hunter and staff arrived here yesterday, on their way to Port Royal, to take command of the army operations in that quarter.

Shipping Point Occupied by U. S. Troops.

WASHINGTON, March 29.—Shipping Point was yesterday occupied by our troops. As the steamer Mount Washington passed that place, the troops had raised the flag of the Union, and the band was playing the Star Spangled Banner. All the rebels who have been in that vicinity for some time past, have left, with the exception of two or three roaming companies of cavalry.

The Rebels Driven from Warrenton Junction.

WASHINGTON, March 29.—Advices from Manassas state that yesterday the enemy in large force, was driven from the Warrentown Railroad junction, by General Sumner.

Snow is falling to-day.

FROM ISLAND NO. 10.

Opening of a New Rebel Battery.—No Intention to Evacuate.—Four Rebel Iron-Clad Gunboats.

ST. LOUIS, March 30.—The army correspondence of the Republican, writing under date of Cairo, March 29, says that the firing on Friday at Island No. 10 was quite heavy, the rebels opening from a new battery, mounted, it is supposed, with 128-pounders. The enemy could be seen cutting away the trees, and rapidly pushing forward means of defence. They seem to have no idea of evacuating at present, and are daily getting more cannon in position. Word reached the fleet, last night, that four rebel gunboats, partly clad with railroad iron, appeared below Gen. Pope's batteries, at Point Pleasant, but, as these batteries extend almost in a continuous line fifteen miles, it is not believed that they can force a passage.

Pennsylvania Oil.

Pennsylvania may boast honestly and literally of being blessed with "the fatness of the earth." Her bosom yields oil in immeasurable quantities. It is gushing at this moment from thousands of fountains in Crawford, Venango and other counties of the northwest, and a busy population is resorting to all possible expedients to save it and prepare it for market. The California gold excitement of 1848–9 was scarcely higher than is the oil excitement of Pennsylvania, though the people outside of the oil territory scarcely appreciate it. They have not witnessed the sudden influx of population and the magical growth of brisk little cities in a region which two years ago, was but sparsely populated.

Some papers published in the towns that have been created by the oil business have reached us, and they afford some idea of the magnitude of the operations that are going on there. Here is the "Oil City Register," published at a place in Venango county which had no existence as a town two years ago. It is an oil paper all over. Oil is the theme of its editorials, its correspondence, its commercial reports, its news items, its advertisements, and even its poetry. Out of twenty-eight columns, there is only a single one devoted to the war and politics. The rest are filled with oil. Some idea of the magnitude of the oil operations may be formed from its weekly "Commercial Report," dated "Oil Exchange, March 11," which says that "speculators have taken, all told, about sixty thousand barrels, at rates from thirty-seven to sixty cents a barrel, according to locality." The stock in tanks is stated to be about one hundred and twenty thousand barrels. At the various stations on the Philadelphia and Erie Railroad, there are about forty thousand barrels, and in the yards and on the banks of Oil Creek, there are about thirty thousand barrels.

Another paper from the oil region is the Titusville (Crawford county) Gazette. This, too, is highly oleaginous, though it gives more attention and space to politics and the events of the rest of the world than its Oil City contemporary. Its advertisements are illustrative of the region and the spirit that pervades it. One firm, that own "a flowing well," appeal to speculators to buy their oil, as they are selling it "at ruinous rates," being "too poor to buy barrels." Another party advertises for "teaming for ten thousand barrels of oil, at $30 a week." Another wants one thousand teams at "Funk's Well." Mr. Willing, of Erie, announces "Oil taken in exchange for Piano-fortes!" Oil-brokers, oil barrel-makers, oil pipe-makers, and various other branches of business dependent on oil, are advertised. The very hotels have oily names, and the traveler is invited to make himself at home at the Petroleum House, or the Oil City Hotel.

The annual yield of our oil field will soon amount to many millions of barrels, for the product is increasing instead of diminishing. Europe, as well as this country, will be eager to procure an article that can be furnished so cheaply, and Philadelphia ought to make the business of refining and selling it her own. Last week a large cargo was shipped hence for London, and there have been a few other shipments.—Evening Bulletin.

ANOTHER SPECIMEN OF REBEL HUMANITY.—A Mr. Showers, who was an unoffending citizen of Fairfax county, Virginia, and a Union man, owning a fine farm, where he has been residing for many years, about half way between Fairfax Court House and Vienna, was taken by the rebel troops, about the time they were evacuating Centreville, and forced to march on foot with the same rapidity with which they beat their retreat on horseback. So rapid and exhausting was the march, that he began to falter, when the inhuman savages, with a brutality which would have done justice to the wild Indians, spurred him on, at the point of the bayonet, until the poor man dropped down dead in the road. We obtained these facts through a person who recently escaped from the clutches of the rebels, and who knows these to be the facts of the case. Mr. Terry, a relative of the deceased, has been down as far as our lines extend, in order, if possible, to obtain the body of his murdered friend, but failed in his efforts. He learned that the body was buried near the road side, between Manassas and Gordonville, but he was warned not to go to the place, as the rebel pickets were still lurking near the spot.—Washington Republican.

Parson Brownlow's Narrative.

Six Months Among the Rebels.

The correspondent of the Cincinnati Commercial of the 16th ult., chronicles the arrival of Parson Brownlow in Nashville; his enthusiastic welcome by Johnson, Etheridge, Maynard, and other distinguished loyalists, and his statement of six months experience among the rebels.

Although annoyed and persecuted all summer and fall, and standing in constant danger of assassination by his rebel enemies, the Parson was determined to defy them all and hold out, too, in Knoxville. But after the bridge-burning in the early part of November, his friends prevailed on him to act upon an intimation of the rebel Secretary of War, that a safe conduct to the North would be given to the most part of the Unionists, if they should be willing to leave the State; and, accordingly, an agreement was entered into, in accordance with which the Parson was to be escorted to the Union lines by a guard sufficiently strong to protect him against all violence. Upon the strength of this agreement, he arranged his private affairs with a view to a prolonged absence, and was about ready to leave, when, notwithstanding the assurances of the rebel Secretary of War, he was arrested on the 6th of December, upon a warrant of the civil authorities, sued out by some of his personal enemies, and thrown into the county jail. The prison was crammed full of Unionists —no less than 150 being confined at the time. The Parson was made to occupy a narrow, damp, badly-ventilated room, with no less than 25 others. So little space was there, that half of the occupants were obliged to stand up while the other half were seeking rest.

There were neither tables, chairs, nor beds. The food was miserable.—Only a chance for washing was given to the prisoners. The drinking water was hauled in barrels from Holston river, and left standing in front of the jail. The rebel guards, having a habit of washing their hands and faces in the barrels, Brownlow remonstrated with them from the prison window.—The response he uniformly obtained was, "By God, sir, the water a Jeff Davis man washes his hands in is good enough for a d—d Lincolnite to drink." During his imprisonment some Secession leaders visited and promised him instant liberation and future protection of his person and property if he would take the oath of allegiance to the Rebel Government. He indignantly replied, "I will rot here till old age before I will do it."

No less than five Union men were led out of the jail to the gallows while he was incarcerated. These hangmen would drive up and down in front of the jail with their victims' coffins, and taunt the prisoners with them. A court-martial passed upon the Parson's case shortly after his arrest. Fortunately, the proposed death sentence upon him came one short of a majority of the court, and imprisonment during the war was substituted.

The ill treatment and want of all comforts told severely on the Parson's feeble health, and after the lapse of a month he was taken sick with typhoid fever. Upon the application of his friends his removal to his private residence was permitted. But even then the rebel persecutions did not cease.—The house was constantly guarded on all sides. No visitors were allowed to enter it at any time, nor were the members of his family allowed to leave it. His wife was compelled to buy provisions at the door in presence of a guard. Every possible opportunity was also improved by the rebel soldiery to heap insult upon the defenceless occupants. The attempts, however, were always met and repelled with spirit by Mrs. Brownlow and her courageous daughter.

At the end of eight weeks the Parson had sufficiently recovered his health to use the pen, and addressed a letter to Benjamin, recounting his grievances, and applying again for the promised safe conduct to the North. After a lapse of some time the military commander, at Knoxville received a despatch from Richmond to release the Parson from arrest, and have him conducted to the Federal lines with whatever escort he might choose. Accordingly, on last Tuesday a week ago, the Parson bade farewell to his family and took the cars for Chattanooga, accompanied by hisson, and under escort of Lieut. O'Brien, a cousin of his wife. The party reached Shelbyville, in the southern part of the State, without detention. Here they were stopped and detained for ten days by order of Gen. Hardee. They were not allowed to proceed until after all of this had been safely moved, lest they should set the Unionists on the rebel tracks. On yesterday morning they left Shelbyville, and travelling overland, reached our outposts to-day about noon. The Parson says he felt the happiest man in the world when he saw the Stars and Stripes once more.

Gov. Johnson, Etheridge, Maynard, and Unionists generally are anxious to see the Parson at the head of the Union paper in this city. But he informs me that his health is inadequate to the task of daily editorial labors at present. He is not sick with consumption, as reported, but suffers still much from general debility arising from his protracted sickness. It is his intention to proceed North to recruit and publish the history of the trials of the Union men of East Tennessee in book form. He talks of stopping first at Cincinnati. I presume I need not bespeak for him a hearty reception.

The Parson states that the Union sentiment is still overwhelming in East Tennessee. Over two-thirds of the population of Knoxville are loyal. He says that there will be a fearful reckoning between the Unionists and their Secession persecutors. "The last dog of them will be killed or driven out," to use his own language. All the Unionists want is that the Union troops clean out the rebel soldiery. The balance of the work they will do themselves. There were not over 4,000 Confederate troops in East Tennessee when he left, the greater part of them were at Cumberland Gap.

ANCIENT JERUSALEM,

A LARGE AND BEAUTIFUL
JERUSALEM
And the Sacred Places Surrounding the HOLY CITY,
AS THEY APPEARED IN ANCIENT TIMES.

The above work is commended to the favorable notice of clergymen, and those having charge of Sunday-schools, Bible-classes, and public institutions.
It is about 9 feet long and 6 feet wide, colored and varnished, and mounted on canvas with rollers.
It has been constructed from the most reliable and authentic sources, and will be found an invaluable aid to those engaged in lecturing on the Holy Land, or in imparting instruction to school classes on the subject to which it refers.
It aims to give an exact idea of the city as it appeared in ancient times. It is taken as a "bird's eye" or "balloon" view, the beholder being, in imagination, placed at a considerable elevation, so as to take a comprehensive view of the city and the whole country for some distance around.
The view is accompanied with an Outline Key, in which the different localities are numbered, and a Descriptive Manual containing all the information necessary to enable one to use the view to advantage in teaching or lecturing.

THE SUNDAY-SCHOOL TIMES.

This is a Weekly Religious Paper, published at the very low price of ONE DOLLAR A YEAR. It is designed for Parents, Teachers, and all who are engaged or interested in the religious training of the young. It is also an excellent Family Paper.
A portion of the Sunday-School Times is occupied with Narratives and other matter particularly interesting to young persons. Teachers will find in it much that they will like to read to their classes—interesting matter prepared to their hands, and such as they cannot find elsewhere. For the same reasons, members of Bible-classes, and the older scholars generally, will be greatly benefited by the perusal of this paper.
The Sunday-School Times has every week a report of the choicest matter, selected from the Noon Prayer Meetings, which are so interesting to all classes of Christians.
Besides a large amount of general religious intelligence, the Sunday-School Times contains all the most recent Sunday-school news. It reports all the important Conventions of Sunday-school teachers. It discusses the questions which most interest and perplex teachers and parents, respecting the various methods of Religious Training for the young, the means of gaining the attention and affections of children and especially of securing their conversion and bringing them to Christ. The subject of Mission-Schools for cities, and of Sunday-school missionary work for the interior, is thoroughly canvassed. Indeed, there is hardly a topic of practical importance to any who are interested in the subject of religious education, which is not here brought under consideration from week to week.
The conductors of this paper endeavor to remember, that the great end of all Christian effort is to bring men to Christ. They aim accordingly, to put into every number of the paper something which shall have for its direct object the conversion of souls.

PRACTICAL CALCULATOR.

ROHRER'S PRACTICAL CALCULATOR,
A Book of Plain Rules and Calculations for Business Operations, by Martin M. Rohrer, Practical Surveyor and Conveyancer. New Edition, published by J. B. Lippincott & Co., Philadelphia.
This work contains 204 pages, and upwards of 500 Rules and Examples, entirely and thoroughly practical, such as arise every day in the common pursuits of Business. It has already passed through a number of editions in rapid succession, and is pronounced by all classes of business men to be the handiest book of reference, pertaining to calculations, that has ever been published.
Every example in the book is worked out in full and stated in a plain manner, so that when a parallel case arises, those referring to the work will find no difficulty in solving it; in a word, the general arrangement of the CALCULATOR is simple, that any one who knows how to add, subtract, multiply and divide, can easily solve any ordinary example that arises in business, or arrive at the true result of any estimate required.
The chief aim of the author has been to eschew theory and philosophy in figures, aiming only at facts and simplicity, believing that business men care little about spending time in discussing the philosophy of rules, or the science of figures, deeming it sufficient for their purpose to be able at a moment, by reference, to arrive at the true result. The CALCULATOR differs in this respect from all other Arithmetics of the day and kindred works—it is a key to practical business calculations—it is, in the hands of the business man, what the key to mathematical works in the hands of the teacher in the school room—it facilitates time and insures correctness.
THE WORK TREATS OF THE
Measurement of Land, of Lumber, of Brick and Brick Work, of Stone and Stone work, of grain and grain bins, of coal and coal bins, of wood, of solids, of liquids, of circular, square or irregular vessels, of cisterns and vats, of roofing, of plasterer's, painter's, glazier's, paver's, plumber's, paper hanger's and upholsterer's work. It treats of currency and of foreign and domestic exchange, of the decimal system, of reduction and its extended application to business, of simple and compound interest, and their entire application to business transactions, with the laws and usages governing the same, together with numerous commercial forms—of legal tender, of partial payment on notes, of banking and bank discount, of equation of payment and of partnership accounts, of assessment of taxes, of weights and measures, of square and cubic measure; of the square root and its application to business of surfaces, of excavation, and of many other important practical matters not within the scope of an advertisement to mention.
IT IS JUST THE BOOK FOR THE
Farmer, the merchant, the mechanic, the artisan, or the professional man. It has proven a valuable auxiliary to the lawyer, the justice of the peace, the conveyancer, and real estate broker, to the assessor, the banker, the clerk, to the civil engineer and the surveyor, to the carpenter and bricklayer, to the stonemason and the plasterer, to the paper hanger and upholsterer, to the paver and the tiler, &c., &c.; each and all will find it adapted to their various wants better than any book published.
